Your issue was not in the fact that we recognized your comprehensive coverage of Purple's use of a 'Plastic' powder. Rather, the issue simply resides in the fact the video wasn't hosted on your YouTube channel.

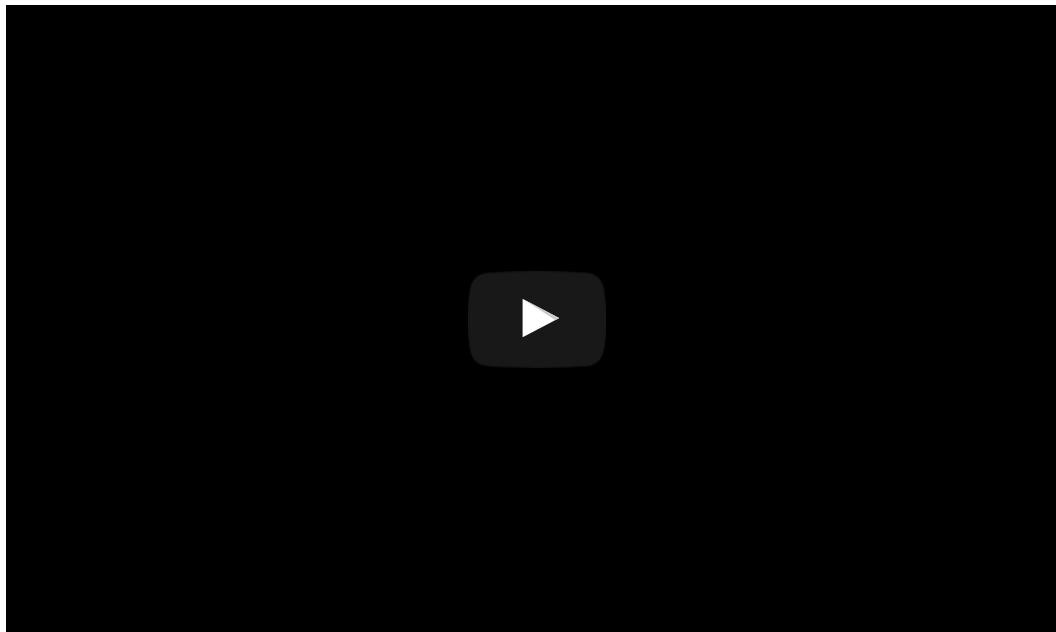

Working with YouTube we now have a very clear understanding of how to accomplish the same goal (consumer education) while ensuring

We asked Derek in this article, "Do Mattress Reviewers Have A Responsibility To Acknowledge Consumer Safety?"

As more consumers turn to the internet for honest, unbiased opinions the importance of a Reviewer Integrity Oath should now be the leading emerging topic amongst reviewers. We've taken it upon ourselves to draft the first version of a Reviewer Integrity Oath. We will publish this seeking the input of other top reviewers as this will be a collaborative effort to create a fair, truthful and sincere review general guidelines.

Do Mattress Reviewers Have A Responsibility To Acknowledge Consumer Safety? We certainly believe so!

About the Mattress Review Space, we at Honest Mattress Reviews believe truly there is a mattress for everyone. So it's not about which is the best-rated mattress on the internet.

In recent days we've published research information regarding Purple's use of "Plastic" powder. Reviewers behavior and actions will stand as the precedent for consumer interests moving forward.

We have a long history of publishing a lot of content about Purple and their amazing videos and we truly look forward to publishing documentation that addresses consumer concerns so we can again promote the Purple Mattress.

As more companies enter the direct to consumer mattress space its the responsibility of each individual company to ensure the products they ship are completely safe.

| We also believe it's the responsibility of mattress reviewers to question, research, conduct tests, and this industry as subject matter experts we pose this question to the industry's top reviewers. To clarify, we selected to include Sleepopolis based on website traffic.

I Rather than educating consumers, Derek (Sleepopolis) adds a small disclaimer in an effort to remove his involved responsibility should this powder have negative effects on consumers.

Now, on to most notable feature about the Purple mattress, cooling. The air pockets created from the webbed polymer smart grid help to keep the sleeping surface extremely cool. Only adding to the mix is the thin cover. Between the heavy airflow through the webbed air pockets and thin cover, this mattress is easily one of the coolest I have slept on to date. The light powder coating (pictured below) on the Purple polymer is a non-toxic proprietary plastic powder material. It helps to minimize some of the noise that the polymer would otherwise create.

Unfortunately for all of the potential consumers, Derek doesn't place any further effort ensuring that his strong recommendation of the Purple mattress without any scientific evidence that the usage of this 'powder' with this intended use is safe.

In the official Sleepopolis mattress review, Derek even indicates that in his opinion the cover is thin (see below). If Derek recognizes the thinness and breathability of the cover (which he touts for its cooling abilities) it's a direct disservice and reckless recommendation not also to inform consumers that

The powder inhaled may impact people who have respiratory issues (both on the mattress and pillow).

So we questioned why someone who invests so much time and energy in building an affiliate website wouldn't seek the best interest of consumers ... ?

Leveraging internet tools, open and available to the public, we conducted six months of website outgoing traffic audit from Sleepopolis to Purple.

When you click on any of those links you automatically install a small tracking cookie. This lives inside your computer or phone for the next 30ish days. That means if you go to buy a mattress 12 days later, Sleepopolis will still receive the sales affiliate commission.

If the mattress affiliate industry ranges on pay agreement percentages based on traffic driven from 5% per sale to 15% per sale we will split the difference for the estimate to 10% per sale.

The users that visit Sleepopolis are made up of good quality traffic. What we mean to be more specific is that the majority of people who visit the website are interested in buying a new mattress and are seeking advice on which one is recommended to buy.

TRANSPARENCY NOTE: We don't know the direct traffic, exact conversion rates or specific deal that Sleepopolis has with Purple.

Final Thought – when researching a product, be it a mattress or consumer electronic, it's most advantageous to understand affiliate relationships and factor that into the endorsement.

We've been a huge fan of Purple and have referred to Sleepopolis as "an industry expert" on many occasions. But, when consumer safety comes after potential profits we call into question your credibility.

Update – last week we published to Purple, "With the utmost respect, we ask, when will you release your completed due diligence ensuring the product we consumers are buying is safe to inhale? As of this publication, they have yet to respond to us at all. We will keep you posted if we hear an answer to this inquiry.

Honest Mattress Reviews does not have any affiliate commission sales relationships with mattress companies.

This is by design to ensure that our focus is on the consumer, not direct commissions for ourselves. We believe that long-term integrity is more valuable than short-term monetary gain.

With that, we regret to inform you that until Purple Mattress discloses to consumers that they will be subjected to and directly inhaling a white powder substance that could be damaging to those with respiratory issues we're going to revoke our endorsement of this mattress. We value consumer knowledge and safety far greater to our organization than funny videos and made up tests.

Once Purple publishes supporting documentation for consumers about the safety of this substance used in the context in which they use it, we will reinstate our recommendation. As a consumer, you have the right and responsibility to research your mattress before you complete your purchase. We're not saying that you should not buy a Purple Mattress. What we are clearly saying is that until consumers are properly informed of this substance we are revoking our recommendation.
